

Seb Loveday-Lam is an 11-year-old boy (but he wrote this when he was 10) who lives in Portsmouth, England. He likes speedcubing and playing chess. His school has poetry competitions and he is very serious about them.

Rainbow Earth

by Seb Loveday-Lam

Swim in red water, walk in red sand

Visit red castles, they are all grand

Climb orange cliffs and see orange shrines

Orange flowers are more than fine

Live in yellow homes touched by yellow breeze

Walk by trees with yellow leaves

Explore green forests, lie in green grass

The range of green plants is extra vast

Swim in blue seas and go to blue towns

Blue caves will never make you frown

Touch purple grass and bright purple lights

Climb purple canyons with impressive heights

The earth is a rainbow, there's only one rule:

Be kind to the planet, and it will be cool

To do all this, these are the places you need to go to:

Lake Natron

Panjin Red Beach

Red Fort

Arches National Park

Torii Gates

Antelope Valley Poppy Reserve

Old Town Cartagena

Ginko Avenue

ANY Forest

The Sea

Juzcar

Marble Cave

Takinoue Park

Gardens by the Bay

Antelope Canyons
