

Leon lives in Avon, CT and has a passion for writing. He enjoys fishing, reading Percy Jackson and baseball!

Prisoners of Nature

by Leon Lusa

The flowers lay alone
In their vases of stone
Away from their home
Losing their tone
Outside they've grown
But they've lost their cologne
Their petals haven't shown
They're just bone
Their secrets will not be known.